Hi All,

As discussed on the call this morning I've updated the Food Loss and Waste Showcase event description, attached. I've left a space for you at the bottom of the document for you to put in some background on actions Italy has taken on reducing food loss and waste, if you would like. Once that is filled it should be ready to be shared with your Italian counterparts as you find helpful.

Please let us know when you find out more about the space, if a conference room will be available in the Agri-Food Center and whether or not it will be possible to have power points or if we need to ask participants to bring hard copies of any presentations or graphics. It looks like Amazon will not be able to attend but we are still working on getting a second US company representative and will keep you updated. Please let us know if you hear anything about the Italian companies/ universities that will be participating and if you find out anything about interpretation costs.

Thanks again for all of your help on the event, it seems like it is starting to take some more shape!

After the call, we'll work up a revised draft and resend to this group.
